Postmaster decides not to fly flag

The postmaster at the Haliburton Post Office, Mr Jim Perrin has decided that he won't put another flag up on the flag pole at the local post office until late in September.

No one can blame him for this action as every new flag that has been hoisted up on the pole this summer has been stolen. It's hard to realize just how many flags have been stolen in a short length of time.

It would appear that these flags are taken down by a few hoodlums who just seem to crop up in the summer months. The flags seem to be safe on all other months of the year with the exception of two months in the summer.

This is only one case of vandalism that Haliburton has experienced during the past few months and with the poor police protection we have been receiving we can look for a lot more of it.

Earthquake at Ingoldsby

The same earthquake which hit Ottawa and Pembroke on Saturday morning last at 8:37 a.m. also struck at Ingoldsby, Ontario in the Haliburton Highlands.

Mrs Margaret Burke who resides at Ingoldsby, told the Echo that she was just sitting down to have her morning coffee and looked up at the clock and it was exactly 8:40 a.m.

Mrs Burke said that at that time she noticed the coffee percolator which was sitting on top of the warming closet on her wood cook stove start to vibrate. It kept it up for close to a minute accompanied by a mild rumble which sounded like an appliance running.

A mild earthquake at Ingoldsby and you can believe it or not.

The citizens of Haliburton County were all happy last week with the cooler weather after weeks of really hot and humid weather conditions. That hot humid weather was fine for the vacationers but it was hard on the local people who had to work in that warm weather.

Wren Blair

From Milkman to NHL owner

Wren Blair reached the peak yesterday in his climb up hockey's mountain.

The onetime milkman in Oshawa, Blair became the first man in National Hockey League history to rise through the management ranks to the board of governors.

Blair is a "Substantial" shareholder in the group which was approved unanimously by the NHL board as new owners of the bankrupt Pittsburgh Penguins. His partners are two bankers, Al Savill of Columbus, Ohio, and Otto Frenzel of Indianapolis.

They paid $3.8 million for Penguins, who went into bankruptcy receivership last month with more than $6.5 million in debts. A federal court approved the sale Wednesday and the governors accepted the purchasers into the lodge yesterday.

To be settled is the $600,000 franchise fee which the NHL requested from the new owners. Lawyers for the bankruptcy guarantors had objected to the fee payment, claiming that money should go to the creditors.

A YEAR TO PAY

The federal court judge ruled that the fee not be paid for a year to give the guarantors time to challenge the payment. Thus, the NHL governors welcomed the new owners, counted their blessings that another NHL problem was cleared up and the fee matter will be solved later.

In addition to fact that they have money, the new Penguin owners bring strong hockey backgrounds. Chairman of the board Savill owns Columbus Owls of the International league while president and chief operating officer Blair has been a prominent executive at all levels of hockey.

Blair's first try at the game's finances came in the 1950s when he talked an Oshawa trucking firm into donating $2,500 for the sponsorship of a Senior B team there. Now, he's 20 per cent owner of an NHL team.

"I suppose there's a little of the old rags-to-riches stuff in my career in hockey," said Blair, who also owns an International league team, Saginaw Gears.

"I was able to move up because I tackled new challenges several times and owning an NHL team is the latest one. Savill and I often joked about buying an NHL team and when Penguins hit all the trouble we sort of said: 'Let's take a shot at it.'"

DREAM COME TRUE

"Savill and Frenzel are in the mortgage and banking business and through their connections, we put the package together. I can't say it's a dream come true but it's damned close."

Blair was manager-coach of Whitby Dunlops, a Canadian senior hockey power in the late 1950s and world amateur champs in '57. He joined Boston Bruins and operated Oshawa Generals juniors. Through his recruiting efforts, Bruins acquired a 13-year-old kid from Parry Sound named Bobby Orr.

Blair became general manager of Minnesota North Stars when they entered the NHL in the '67 expansion. He built the team into an artistic and financial success, then was fired in 1974.

Always a sharp man with a dollar, Blair invested wisely. He and Maple Leaf general manager Jim Gregory own the successful Haliburton Hockey Haven boys' camp and his Saginaw team is a money-maker.

"I've been asked why I wanted to get back into the NHL rat-race, when I wasn't doing badly in other areas," Blair said. "Well, I guess everyone wants to be in the big leagues if he can."

HE'S DONE IT ALL

"When I'd done just about everything else in hockey - scout, coach, manager and minor league owner, I often thought that I could cap it all by having a piece of an NHL team. But I figured there was no way I could do it because I'm no millionaire."

"Then Al Savill and I got together when some kidding became serious. He's been in the financial business, I've been in the hockey business and here we are with an NHL team."

Blair will be in complete control of the hockey portion of the Penguin operation, a combined president-general manager, although the team won't use the G-M title.

"We haven't decided on any front-office personnel yet," Blair said. "We'll be doing that in the next couple of weeks. I can't say if we'll retain any people who have worked for the team."

That leaves a doubtful future for Penguins G-M Jack Button, who has had a hectic month as the court-appointed receiver in the bankruptcy. He and Blair will meet next week and Button could be named director of player personnel.

Hydro to recommend lower rate hike

Ontario Hydro's senior management will recommend to its Board of Directors that submissions be made to the Ontario Energy Board early in August which will show a "substantial reduction" in the revenue required for 1976 and will suggest that the OEB should recommend lower rates for next year than those set out in Hydro's original proposal.

Ontario Hydro counsel

Pierre Genest told the OEB hearings today that "part of this will be made up from cuts in administrative costs and part from a reduction in the proposed system expansion charge."

He said, "The capital expansion program to 1985 will be cut by $1 billion, but we will not be in a position to indicate how this will be done until the beginning of August."

Mr Genest reported that Hydro President Douglas Gordon said in a directive this week to Hydro staff, "it will be clear to you that extraordinary pressures are being exerted on the national and provincial economies and these call for extraordinary measures."

Mr Gordon said, "there is no doubt that Ontario Hydro has entered a period of severe austerity."

OPP warns about impaired driving

The Ontario Provincial Police, Minden are appealing to the people in Haliburton County to use their good judgement when they have been drinking. To refrain from using their vehicles or boats.

During 1973 there were 25 people charged with impaired driving in the County. During 1974 there were 29 people charged with impaired driving. In 1974 there were 13 fatal collisions resulting in 16 deaths - 7 of these collisions were the result of the impaired driver.

Minden Detachment acquired a Borkenstein Breathalyzer in January 1975 and since that time there have been 55 people charged with impaired driving by the Detachment.

The O.P.P. appreciate the assistance and concern of citizens who have taken the short time to notify the police, of the impaired drivers they have seen on the road. They may have saved a life! If YOU drink Don't drive, YOU may save your own life.

Charged with assault

At 2:20 AM 13 July 1975 the OPP received a report of a fight at Hollow Valley Lodge Dorset. Prov. Consts. Telford, Clendenning and Jarvis attended. Jeffery Harold Tompkins age 21, Paint Lake Rd., Dorset has been charged with Assault causing bodily harm and wilful damage. Tompkins and his friend Betty Ann Wynn age 36 same address had been at Hollow Valley and when they went to leave Wynn was going to drive. Tompkins wanted to drive and it is alleged that Tompkins struck Wynn several times and the police were summoned. There was damage to the Taverns door. Wynn was taken to the Huntsville Hospital with severe bruises and a laceration to the head.

Wren Blair back in NHL

Mr Wren Blair President of One 2 One Corporation and Haliburton Youth Developments Ltd. returned to his summer home this weekend after a hectic week of meetings between Toronto and Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. By the end of the week Wren found himself back in the N.H.L. as part owner and President of the Pittsburgh Penguins Hockey Club. His two partners are Mr Al Savill of Columbus, Ohio, who expects to visit the Highlands next weekend, and Mr Otto Fenzel of Indianapolis.

By acquiring the franchise Wren has upset his plans to spend most the summer here in Haliburton, however the challenge of the Penguins will keep him in Pittsburgh quite a lot during the next few months.

Wren expressed his hopes of bringing the team for part of the 1976 training camp to the new hotel and golf course which he and his local partners are building on Highway 121.

It goes without saying that Wren is delighted to be back in the N.H.L. and can hardly wait for the teams first encounter with his previous club in Minnesota.

Local people are being ticketed too

The subject of parking meters in the village of Haliburton is always a good topic for discussion.

In last weeks Letters to the Editor column in this paper a letter from Angus McDonald stated and we Quote "The first point made was that if a licence plate indicated that the owner was "local" then the By-Law Officer would be apt to overlook a parking violation. If however, the offender is from out of town (even though he may own property i.e. a cottage) then he will receive a ticket if there is a parking meter infraction." Unquote.

The above statement couldn't be further from the truth. It's a known fact that the local people are being ticketed just as many times or more than the visitors. It doesn't matter who you are or where you live the parking violation tickets still go on.

Take it from the writer of this editorial that everyone is being treated in the same manner. I am a native here, born and raised in Haliburton and during the past two months I have received a total of seven tickets.

We will admit that the parking meter by-law should be enforced more during the winter months, but in many cases during the winter according to local authorities its impossible to check the meters due to heavy snowstorms.

Why the high gas price?

In a recent trip from Peterborough along highway 28 to Cardiff we paid particular attention to the gas prices at the various stations. The prices per gallon started at 69 cents and the highest was 72 cents.

The question on many people's mind seems to be "Why are we paying at least 10c more a gallon here in Haliburton County?" It's one that should be answered.

The main point of conversation during the past week seems to be the price of gasoline. Many people who we have been talking to wonder if the high price of gas in Haliburton County is having an effect on the local tourist trade. It could be.

Prices in most cases and at most gas stations in the County seem to be ranging from 82c a gallon up.

Letter to the editor

Dear Sir:

As I mentioned in a previous letter of introduction, my team members and I are very busy this summer researching the history of education in Haliburton County. In conjunction with our research, Lois Deacon and I spent a few days last week in Toronto, where we visited the Ontario Provincial Archives of Ontario, the Ontario Institute of Studies in Education, and the Metro-Central Library. Unfortunately, the only information that these libraries had were copies of the same history books of Haliburton and Minden that our local libraries contain.

Therefore, we are in desperate need of information and pictures pertaining to the schools, past and present, that have been built in our county. We are especially looking for more information concerning the townships of Cardiff and Sherborne.

If you have any information at all that could help us with our project, please call us at 457-1980.

Thank you kindly for your co-operation.

The Secret

by Ralph S. Cushman

I met God in the morning
When my day was at its best
And His presence came like sunrise
Like a glory in my breast.

All day long the Presence lingered,
All day long, He stayed with me,
And we sailed in perfect calmness
O'er a very troubled sea.

Other ships were blown and battered,
Other ships were sore distressed,
But the winds that seemed to drive them,
Brought to us a peace and rest.

Then I thought of other mornings,
With a keen remorse of mind,
When I too had loosed the moorings,
With the presence left behind.

So I think I know the secret,
Learned from many a troubled way;
You must seek Him in the morning
If you want Him through the day!

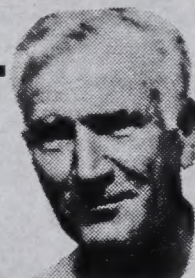

Pic of the past

Remember this old building? It was what was known as the Haliburton Community Arena. It had served its time and around 1964 it was decided to tear it down and build the splendid modern building now in the same location known as the Dysart Community Centre. The old arena still holds many memories of great hockey games and all night and all day hockey tournaments.

All about money

BILL SMILEY

WELL, Canada's in good shape for a long, hot summer, it looks like.

Don't be surprised, even in these days of women's liberation, if you hear some time this summer that a member of the male sex has given birth to a child.

The figurative father would be Mayor Drapeau of Montreal, one of the great con artists

Asked near the beginning of the fiasco whether there was any chance of the Canadian Olympics being a financial disaster, His Worship replied something like this: There is as much chance of the Olympics losing money as there is of a man having a baby.

Well, hi there, Dad! The 1976 Olympics, to be held in the Canadian city with the worst slums, the worst schools, the worst sewage problems, and the biggest crime rate in Canada, is now approaching $300 million over estimates.

But don't sell M. Drapeau short. He has pulled so many rabbits out of so many hats in the last decade, baffling his audience in the proceedings, that it's not at all impossible that he will prevail upon one of his stooges to produce.

I can see the headlines now: Drapeau Aide Bears Baby; Medics Baffled. The kid will be born with an Olympic coin in his mouth, and he'll be hustling lottery tickets from his cradle.

But you and I will still be stuck with a tax bill that would have made the Fathers of Confederation have a simultaneous group stroke. The whole country wasn't worth that!

Don't be surprised if M. Drapeau starts a completely new lottery, with the winner (men only) chosen as the first man in Canada to have a baby. I know a lot of women who would buy tickets.

However, that's peanuts, only something like one tenth of the national debt.

There's the very serious problem of the increase in the price of gas. Dear me, if they keep putting up the price of gas, it will soon be more than a pack of cigarettes. It has already soared past the cost of a bottle of beer. What is this country coming to?

with about as much choice as a lady who is eight months pregnant, has produced again, with a budget that will go down in history with the same impact as the 50th anniversary of Joey Crack and Flossie Snail.

So the price of gas has gone up. So, what's new? Did we all expect it to go down?

And these stern, new prices are going to cut away back on our mis-use of one of our natural resources. My foot!

Did you stop smoking when fags went up to 80 cents a package? Did you stop drinking when beer crept up from about 12 cents a bottle to 30 cents?

Are you going to stop driving and get off your lazy tail and walk down to the store for a pack of cigarettes or a pack of beer?

Those, of course, are rhetorical questions. We're smoking more than ever, drinking more than ever, and we'll probably burn more gas than ever, just to prove how irrational we are.

There is only one thing that is going to cut away back on our wastage of fuel. That is when some politicians (they'd have to do it in concert, because no individual would have the guts to do it) decree that the speed limit will promptly be reduced to 40 miles an hour, in Canada.

If we did that, and at the same time cut by two-thirds the amounts spent on superhighways, we'd almost pick up the amount M. Drapeau is flushing down the drain.

I can see that you're wondering why Smiley isn't Minister of Finance, if he has all the answers.

Well, I can tell you. I have the big, broad concepts well in hand, but sometimes the niggling little details escape me.

Recently, for example, I had my wife convinced that if I paid up for my war service, and taught for another year, I could retire at a pretty good pension.

Not that she was in favor of it. She wants me to work until I'm so old and sick and tired and stupid and useless that nobody will have me, except her. Then she plans to cart me off to Golden Glow Haven or such. One of those awful places where couples can retire together.

My idea is that we should split when we finally decide we are mature. She can have the house, the car (1967 Dodge), the piano, rugs, the $147 in stocks and bonds, the lawnmower and the snow shovel. I won't need any of that.

I'll just take my grandbaby, Pokey, and we'll go off somewhere and make a good life for ourselves, with no women.

My calculations were out about 400 per cent on the pension deal, so I have to work for another 20 or 30 years.

And perhaps that is the reason I am a very astute financial critic in the big world, and a complete failure in my own.

On the other hand, there are not many guys still driving a '67 Dodge that runs like a well-oiled rabbit. And there are not many guys left who still have 12 shares of Elder Mines. And there are not many guys my age who could still make a good living in a pool room.

So, watch it, John Turner. The Argyle Syndicate Ltd.

Hydro announces study to improve aquatic environment

Ontario Hydro is undertaking a $5 million program aimed at minimizing the effect its future thermal-electric generating stations will have on the aquatic environment.

It has hired a team of consultants to carry out biological aspects of the study relating to fish and plant life and plans to make use of this information to develop an improved once-through water cooling system for the stations.

Beak Consultants Ltd., Toronto, will determine the effects the present system has had on organisms entrained in the cooling water, the best means of reducing the impact of this water on aquatic communities and the comparison between on-shore and off-shore discharges on lake ecosystems.

Lawler, Matusky and Skelly Engineers, Tappan, N.Y., will carry out studies pertaining to fish residency and spawning activity in relation to the influences of heated discharges and James F. MacLaren Ltd., Toronto, will investigate fish movements in the vicinity of the submerged intakes of cooling water systems, plus provide recommendations for upgrading the design of present screening and fish handling devices.

Hydro's Research Division will also expand its aquatic biology studies pertaining to thermal discharges.

Hydro works closely with the Ministries of the Environment and Natural Resources in developing policies and guidelines relating to the intake and discharge of cooling water.

Studies are expected to take between three and five years to complete.

Ontario Hydro sets construction safety record

Ontario Hydro has established the best construction safety record in the province.

The all-time low disabling injury frequency rate of 14 (disabling injuries per million manhours worked) for 1974 is less than half that of the rest of the construction industry in Ontario.

Fred Green, manager of Hydro's Safety Department, credits a concerted safety-consciousness program with bringing the record down from an all-time high of 40 in each of the years 1956, 1957, and 1958.

"Although construction staff has nearly doubled from the late 50s -- we had more than 5,500 at the end of 1974 -- the accident frequency has decreased steadily," Mr Green says.

A construction safety committee, including all construction managers meets regularly to set policies, review problems and accidents, discuss programs and study the general methods of safety in the whole construction business. These men set the tone for safety which is reflected in the work of the whole construction segment of Hydro.

"We have a safety officer on every project," Mr. Green says. "They carry on their work right on the site. They talk with new men on the job and indoctrinate them in safety. For example, they are informed that hard hats and safety shoes must be worn on all construction jobs. Other equipment such as safety glasses must be worn when required."

In 1948, construction recorded 20 fatal accidents. By 1972, the figure had dropped to zero. In both that year and 1973, there were no fatal accidents. Last year, just one was recorded, when a construction worker was killed in a highway accident.

"In days gone by, the criterion was one worker killed for every million dollars of construction," he says. "This is no longer an acceptable level of safety. Working conditions have improved considerably and the recent emphasis of government agencies in enforcing new safety legislation has helped to ensure safety on-the-job."

The construction industry as a whole has become more safety conscious and our safety record is even better than the national one. When you consider the amount of heavy construction we do, we've a fantastically good record."

Hydro is not only concerned with its own employees, but also those of the contractors and sub-contractors who are hired for specific jobs.

"We definitely control the work done by contractors on our jobs," Mr. Green says. "We don't hesitate to shut down an operation if we find unsafe conditions. If it's a hazardous situation, we'll just say 'stop' until safe measures are brought in."

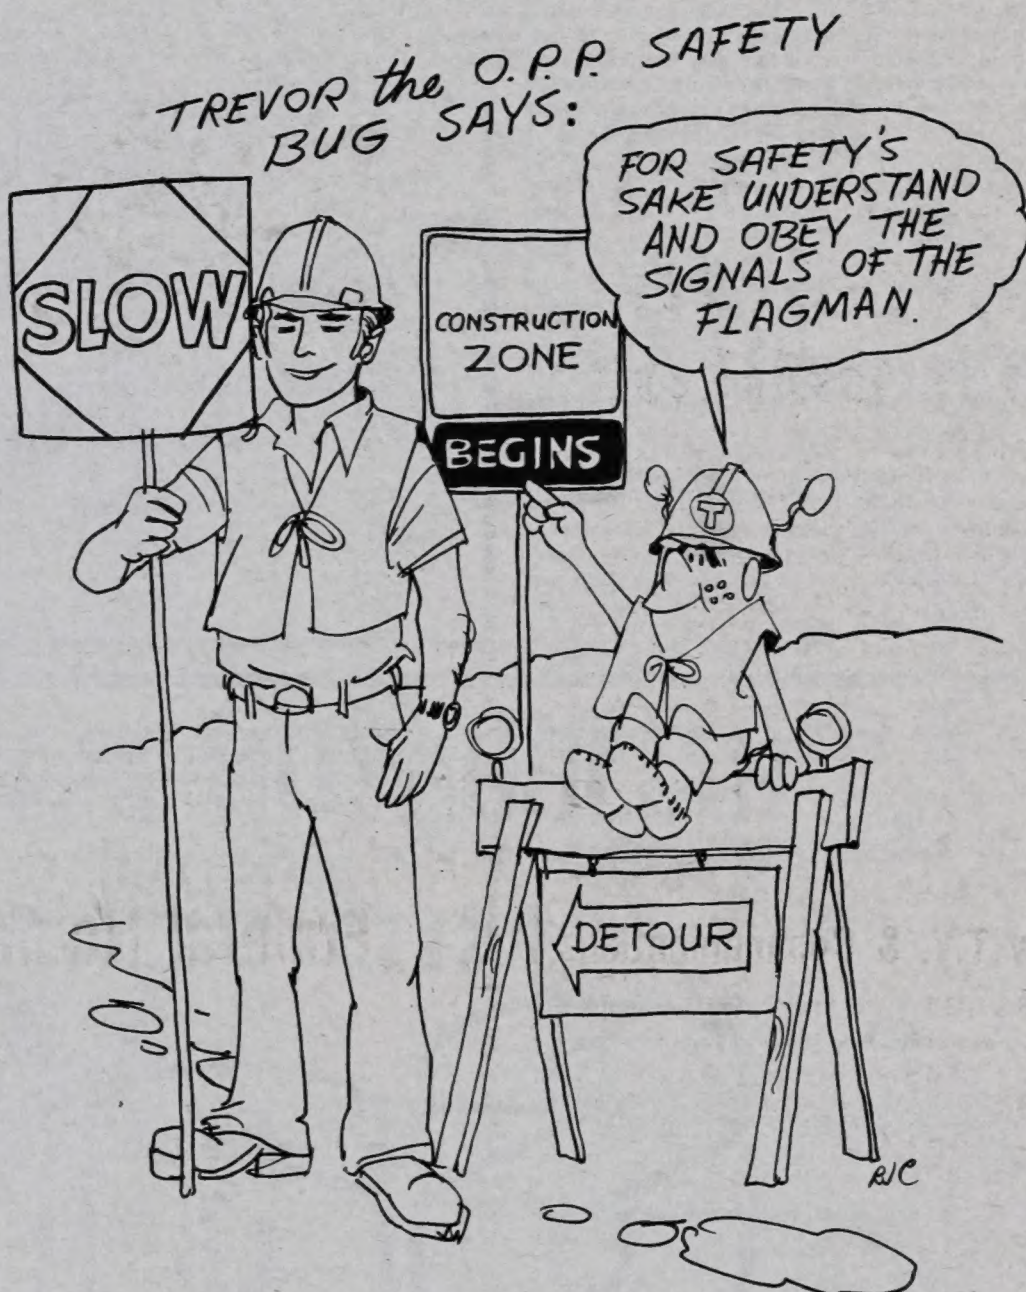

"We hire good contractors and we check up to make sure they are working within the law," Mr. Green adds. "After all, Hydro has a legal responsibility to ensure that contractors on our projects work safely and in accord with the provincial and federal safety legislation."

"We emphasize that safety must be considered, and if there is any question about the safety of a work method, an alternative must be found."

"In Ontario Hydro construction, safety is given top consideration on every job," he says. The record is there to prove it.

Fire Department comes to the aid of Senior Citizen

On Saturday night the Stanhope Fire Department held a dance at Medley's in Carnarvon. Among the crowd were two ladies from Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home, Mrs Gladys

Thorne and Mrs Elma Welch along with the Administrator Mrs Elsie Bursey and the Activities Director, Mrs Lily Rawlins. About 10:30 p.m. Mr Bob Jennings called the four ladies onto the floor and after introductions called on the Fire Chief, Mr Richard Kinsman to make the presentation of a cheque for $250.00 to Mrs Thorne who is President of the Residents Council at the Home.

This gift is to go to the fund the residents have instigated for the purchase of a Paraplegic Bus.

Following this presentation Constable M. Legge was called to the floor and a cheque was given to him to help in the purchase of a Rescusi Anne for use in the training of mouth to mouth resuscitation.

Some people may wonder what the Stanhope Fire Department do with the money they raise, well this is a sample of their service. They have become a hard working group of volunteers not just at fighting fires, at which there are no better, but along with their wives they are dedicated to giving service to the area. Stanhope can be proud of their volunteer fire department.

The residents of Hyland Crest thank them most sincerely for helping their bus fund which now stands at $3375.00, the goal is $13,000.00.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

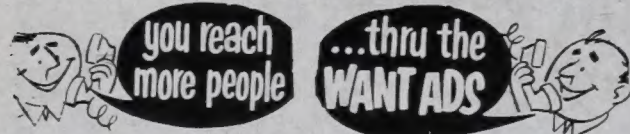

I feel the front page of your newspaper is very uninteresting and in fact disgraceful to the community of Haliburton.

Is the most important issues in Haliburton who was arrested for "careless driving", "drunken men" and "boys taking trucks" (quoted from July 3rd front page of the Echo)?

I feel police business should be handled on another page and more important issues or ones of more interest entered on the front page.

Yours sincerely
Betty Smith

First week of Hydro rate hearings completed

The first full week of sittings of the Ontario Energy Board hearings into Ontario Hydro's 1976 rate proposals was focused on the forecasting of system loads.

L.T. Higgins, Hydro's economist in charge of load forecasting, gave evidence and was cross examined by the major intervenors in the hearings. These included the Association of Major Power Consumers in Ontario, the Association of Municipalities of Ontario, the Canadian Association of Consumers and the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Load forecasting became a major issue in the hearings, since Hydro filed a revised load forecast the opening day of the hearings June 9. The new forecast data indicates that electrical demands in Ontario over the next 10 years will be about 4 to 5 per cent lower than those forecast in the formal submission to the OEB made last month. These projected lower demands would move the long term growth rate slightly below the 7 per cent a year previously forecast.

Mr Higgins told the Board he foresees the economy maintaining its present slow rate until the latter part of 1977. He said at that point he sees a "bunching" of major industrial activity which will mean an upturn in the provincial economy.

Many people, said Mr. Higgins, had felt that Canada was the one industrialized nation that the world energy crisis couldn't affect, to the point that they felt Canada could have its own oil pricing system.

"While Canada hasn't been hit by the recession like other countries have," he said, "We're slowly getting into the act."

During cross examination by counsel for AMPCO, the question of accuracy of Mr Higgins' forecast came up in relation to a study by the Federal Power Commission in the United States. A document from the FPC indicated an average energy forecast error of 2.7 per cent for utilities in the U.S.

Mr Higgins pointed out that he does not do energy (the total amount of power used in a time period) forecasting. If one looked at the peak load (the highest amount of power at one time) forecasting, which Hydro does, the average error figure mentioned in the document was 3.5 per cent.

"By comparison, Hydro's margin of error for the same period was 1.17 per cent", he said.

The hearings will continue on July 2 at which time it's expected that the financial forecast of Hydro will be examined.

Hydro's rate proposals call for an average increase of 29.7 per cent in wholesale rates to municipal utilities and an average of 29.9 per cent increase to 99 direct industrial customers.

Beware of the mother bear

A mother bear has again staked out the vicinity of the Parry Sound town dump as summer territory for herself and cubs, reviving, for the Ministry of Natural Resources, the question of what to do about it.

Public opinion polarizes strongly on the subject of bears near built up areas. Some like having them around while others want them removed as a hazard. Removal means shooting them, trapping or immobilizing the animals with drugs and releasing them somewhere else, none of which are very satisfactory solutions, the Ministry points out. Killing them is viewed as undesirable except where there is clearly a threat to human life. The Ministry has a bear live-trap at Parry Sound but its vital mechanism is a heavy iron trap door that could prove just as fatal to an inquisitive child as might an angry bear. And it is virtually impossible to trap and release all the members of a bear family together, so there are motherless cubs to worry about.

The Ministry also has a "tranquillizer gun" but these devices are not as slick as they appear on television films, where the footage that doesn't fit is snipped out. The drug dosage has to be just right to immobilize a bear for long enough to handle it, yet not kill it. And it doesn't act instantly; you have to follow the fleeing animal into the bush, then somehow drag it out to a truck before it recovers.

Wildlife managers favour a "live and let live" policy with wild animals that choose to share the parts of the outdoors we claim. In the case of garbage dump bears, common sense decrees that viewing be done from cars, and that the throwing of food (or anything else) in their direction be strictly avoided. Children playing in the area should be given the time-tested warning about the special respect due she-bears with cubs.

Bears that settle on the outskirts of town seem eager to return this respect, for although in past years many people expressed alarm about what might happen, no actual confrontations with belligerent bears seem to have occurred. It looks like 1975 is going to be a blueberry year, so most garbage dump bears should return to the wilderness by mid-July.

NILA REYNOLDS "IN QUEST OF YESTERDAY" - THEODORE
PEACOCK "TALES OF THE TRAIL"

This Laughing Pilgrimage

"The story of Maude Anderson Finley, Tory Hill, Ontario.

It is just edited by Nila Reynolds."

My father had given Gerald a train engine, tender and three coaches which provided him with many hours of entertainment. He also owned an elephant penny bank which he used to lengthen his train. One day I realized that I had not seen the bank since an older child had been playing with him. After a careful search of the house and grounds I had to assume it was missing and why. The older child's father worked at the mill and when he was told of the bank he questioned his child who admitted taking the toy which was broken open and pitched into the bush after the money was extracted.

The father was simply heartsick that the child had done such a thing and quickly paid us the twelve dollars the bank had contained. This man had a large family - nine boys and one girl and when he was asked how many children he had would answer "Nine boys and a sister for every one of them."

Lots of people were slow to catch on to his joke and would exclaim "My goodness, eighteen children!"

He was a fine man and a good parent whose family grew up to become pretty good citizens.

In his business Ed cut the timbers, lumber and shingles for a lot of large barns which were being built in the surrounding country. When the time came to "raise" the barn, we were often invited to attend. It was like a large picnic and if the weather was fine they set tables under the trees loaded with every good thing to eat you can imagine for the workers. All the women and girls in the community came to help with the meals and stayed to enjoy the dance on the completed barn floor which was sure to follow. Everyone went home tired but happy.

We had a good driving horse but one day its owner was out with some of his pals and was tempted to trade it for a larger more handsome beast which turned out to have such a slow gait that it was easier to walk behind him than to ride. We went to a funeral and "Old Charlie" went so slow that we were holding up the whole funeral procession. Finally in exasperation we turned out and let all the others pass. There were no cars then.

Another time we wanted to go home to the village but found all our horses were busy elsewhere. Ed hired a horse from a farmer for the trip. One of the young men working for us also wanted to go home so Ed invited him to ride along. He declined on the grounds that he could walk faster. Ed bet him five dollars he couldn't. When we got to the village he was waiting for us and the five dollars Ed had to give him.

Several years after her husband's death Ed's mother and her youngest son, Jack, rented a log farm house nearby and moved in so she could be closer to our family then living by the mill. The old farmer who owned the place then moved into a smaller building a short distance from the one rented to mother Finley. There was a hasp lock on the old man's hut and one day my second son, Hid, then three and a half years old, locked the old gentleman in and wouldn't let him out until he was promised some candy.

That year we had boys from the United States staying with us for the summer. They had a wonderful time and when they went home told their playmates about the big park their Grandma had (the farm) "there was lots of trees and animals in it and a man."

Gerald and Hid loved to include me in their play and used to pay me formal visits and tell me funny stories. According to Gerald he had a wife and four children and nothing for them to eat. Could I just let him have a bag of flour? I can't remember his assumed name now except that it was very funny. Hid came in from playing one day and announced that he was Sir Sam Hughes, who was at that time the federal M.P. for our Victoria-Haliburton Riding. He gave me quite a line then gravely inquired, "Where is your little boy Hid, today?"

I told him my child was out playing but might pop in any minute. I always enjoyed these imaginative conversations with my children and playing "Let's pretend."

My first little girl was born in that old log house near Burnt River which grandma had fixed up in a comfortable, practical way.

We went down a few years ago and took pictures of the old place, which at the time was being used for a hay barn, and sent these photographs of her birthplace to Jean with the suggestion that, if she ever felt like high hatting the backwoods people, she might look at the picture. Not that Jean needs to be reminded of her country birthplace; although she lives in a handsome new ranch house in a recently developed part of London, she remains her natural, happy self and enjoys nothing better than a return to their family cottage on one of our beautiful Haliburton Lakes ... If Bill, her husband, could manage it he would stretch his three weeks vacation to include the rest of the year there.

The decision to exchange our home at Burnt River for dad Anderson's store at Tory Hill was a momentous one for us all. As dad grew older he became more deeply entrenched in the life of his community until he had just too many irons in the fire for one man to handle. When this happened he coaxed us to buy him out. He had already built himself an office and was Clerk of Monmouth Township. In addition he had an Insurance business, issued marriage licences, wrote deeds and mortgages, and was Postmaster and Crown Lands Agent as well. These activities could keep him busy enough without the store.

After much deliberation we decided for the change. Ed sold his share of the lumber business and our home on the river. In October of 1908 we moved to Tory Hill and put in a fine stock of goods for the winter which was spent in an apartment over the store. Business was good since we had no opposition but Ed, not contented with merchandizing, bought logs, pulpwood, and eventually another sawmill.

Two years later in 1910 tragedy struck us without warning. My brother, Ross Anderson, had been unpacking a large crate of dishes which were packed in straw. While working thus the packing material became scattered about. At about 10:30 p.m., as Ross was locking up, one of the four big oil lamps suspended from the ceiling fell to the floor with a crash and exploded on impact sending bits of fire shooting in all directions.

My husband, Ed, and the four children had already gone to bed. Although I was exhausted from a gruelling day which started with a huge wash, dinner for nine people, picking raspberries in the afternoon and preparing a big supper before canning five quarts of berries and doing the dishes, just to finish off the day, I had brought in a line of children's clothes and coloured things for ironing. I was preparing a snack for myself in the apartment over the store when I heard Ross yell. My first impression was that someone was holding him up for the cash box. Then I smelled smoke.

Upstairs an aroused Ed grabbed four year old Don while his niece, who was staying with us, took Jean, then a year and a half, and rush to the balcony from which Ed threw Jean and Don to the ground while the girl jumped. Ed himself slid down the flag pole and was badly burned. When I tried to follow them with nine year old Gerald and Hid who was seven we were turned back by the devouring flames.

At this point I had to clutch both children tightly by the hand since they then wanted to go to the stairway which by this time was a seething cauldron of fire. We fought our way through the choking smoke to the living room window where we were met by my other brother who broke the screen out with his hands.

By this time a crowd had assembled below and men were trying to set up a ladder with one short end which, of course made it turn sideways uselessly. They kept yelling "Jump. Jump."

I got the two boys out safely and then jumped myself, a drop of about eighteen feet. Although they tried to catch me everyone missed and my head struck the ground. I lay still until, as from a great distance, I could hear them yelling "Her neck is broke! Her neck is broke!"

I leaped to my feet and cried "No, it isn't," as I ran frantically about seeking the children who were miraculously all unharmed. My own hair was scorched, my forehead and nose blistered and for two or three days I couldn't close my hands. The three boys showed no effects whatever but Jean's hair was scorched into a mat. My brother, who jumped as soon as I was out of the way, was fine.

What a sorry looking bunch we were - six in night clothes, me wearing my old berry picking outfit with the skirt frayed about the hem and sporting assorted burned spots. Ross wore his every day working clothes. We lost everything - all our clothes, seven good pieces of luggage, our wedding presents, all my nice quilts and twenty five pair of hand decorated pillow cases, my violin, Ed's harp and the seventeen dollars in twenty five cent shin plaster bills I had been saving. The only things we had left to our names were the line of clothes I had not taken in.

The neighbours gathered up clothes for the children - adequate, but not outstanding for fit. We had a camp and cookery at the mill so we took our meals there while the children and I stayed with neighbours at night. As soon as we assembled enough clothing to appear respectable we took the train for my mother's home in Toronto where my half sister, who was a skilled seamstress, soon had us properly clothed.

A salute to the students of Ontario

In the Minden District of the Ministry of Natural Resources, fifteen students are employed under Ontario's "Experience '75" program. A similar number of students are gainfully employed in the districts of Parry Sound Bracebridge, Bancroft, Algonquin Park and pembroke.

Six students in the Minden District are involved in a program to maintain 27 public access points. The latter properties are reserved on most lakes by Natural Resources to ensure access to lakes by the general public not in possession of cottage properties. Most public access points have free boat-launching facilities, a dock, picnic tables, fireplace grills, parking and toilet facilities. No overnight camping is allowed, but picnicking, boating, swimming, and games are permitted.

Elliott Falls access point on Highway 35, thirty miles north of Lindsay is a typical access point. This six acre property on the Gull River System was set aside as a public access point in 1966. Three students (2 girls and a boy) are engaged here in dock maintenance, mowing grass, painting toilets, and mixing concrete for installation of fireplace grills.

The three students are Ursula Szuba, a first year biology student at University of Toronto, Elaine Burgess a 3rd year English and psychology student at McMaster, and Tim Nicholson a Resource Management student at Seneca College. According to their foreman, Merv Cowan all three of his students, like the overwhelming proportion of them employed by the Ministries, are excellent workers who are both co-operative and serious about their work. According to Merv Cowan, he can leave them to complete a task without ever having to be concerned about their diligence.

These students are part of a group of 8,000 students employed this summer by 14 provincial ministries in a ten million dollar program. Most students are employed on projects which might otherwise not be done under regular government programs.

The Ministry of Natural Resources takes great pleasure in saluting the students of Ontario employed under the "Experience '75" program.

Ford-Webster wed

On June 27, at 7:00 p.m. in Christ Church Anglican, Woodbridge, amid a setting of beautiful garden flowers arranged by Mrs. Elwin Simpson of Kleinburg, Margaret Joanne, daughter of the Reverend Frank Albert and Mrs. Ford of Woodbridge became the bride of Joel David Webster, son of Mrs. Mable and the late Mr. Douglas Webster of Toronto.

The bride's father the Reverend Frank Albert Ford officiated at the ceremony which was one of joy and happiness. After the lighting of the candles by the bride's brother Master Peter Richard, who assisted his father by serving for the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson of Carnarvon sang "Sweet Spirit" which was accompanied by Ray on the guitar.

The processional was Purcell's "Trumpet Tune" played by trumpeter Michael Nease of Woodbridge, accompanied by organist William Gliddon of Haliburton. During the signing of the register Mr. Gliddon played "Sheep May Safely Graze". The gradual was "Hymn to Joy" (Beethoven's melody).

The epistle was read by the best man and the gospel was read by the maid of honour. During the eucharist Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer", accompanied by Mr. Johnson on the guitar. The hymn during the ablutions was "Praise the Lord! Ye Heavens, Adore Him". Trumpeter Michael Nease played "Sound Ye Trumpets" by Jeremiah Clarke, accompanied by organist Mr. Gliddon as the wedding party gaily recessed.

The old church bell, which was first rung Christmas 1923, was enthusiastically rung by bell-ringer Daniel Greer of Woodbridge.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Herbert Simpson of Toronto wore her mother's gown of French ivory lace over ivory satin, finished at the neck with her great grandmother's, sunburst pin. A small cap of matching lace and pearl held her full-length veil of ivory net. She carried a cascade of apricot sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath. The groom wore a matching boutonniere of stephanotis. The bride's sister, Miss Nancy Louise, maid of honour carried a nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath and lace, and niece of the groom, Miss Jennifer Lee, flowergirl, carried a little natural wicker basket of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath. They wore gowns of matching yellow wallpaper stripe print trimmed with white eyelet.

The bridesmaids, Miss Kimberley Antonacci and Miss Arlene Curtis wore gowns of pink wallpaper stripe print and blue wallpaper stripe print respectively, trimmed with white eyelet. They carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath and lace. Mr. Tim Toikkanen of Lindsay was best man and the ushers were Mr. Richard Farndon of Brampton and Mr. Dennis Webster of Nova Scotia, brother of the groom. Master Frank Stephen, the bride's brother was parking attendant.

The reception followed in the Parish Hall, catered by Mrs. Joseph Kersey of Kleinburg and the Christ Church A.C.W. The wedding cake was exquisitely decorated by Mrs. Kersey and ornamented with a family heirloom of a net filigree bell hanging on a gold wishbone entwined with lily-of-the-valley and orange blossoms around a nest with two doves, used by the bride's mother, grandmother and great grandmother.

After a honeymoon in Florida, the couple will spend the summer in Haliburton and then reside in Thornhill.

Trent-Severn Waterway

In the seven day period ending July 10th, the loss of water on the Kawartha Lakes and Reservoir Lakes from evaporation only was estimated to be equivalent to 1200 cubic feet per second. This is almost three times the minimum flow in the Gull River.

Local rainshowers which have been isolated have had no effect on water levels as the ground is so dry that little or no water that falls on the surrounding county reaches the lakes.

The result has been a drop in storage on the Reservoir Lakes of about 5 percent. Flows in the Otonabee have been kept well below the minimum in order to conserve water.

Tenders

The Ministry of Transportation and Communications has announced that Cruickshank Construction Limited of Morrisburg, Ontario has been awarded Contract No. 75-10 for:

Grading, drainage and granular base from Kinmount Northerly to Secondary Highway No. 519. Highway 121, Mileage: 4.78, Bancroft District.

The Contractor's tender for this contract was $945,559.45. It is scheduled to get under way July 28th, 1975.

The Housewife's Christ

by Ina MacTaggart

It isn't always easy, Lord, to think of You and pray
When firewood just won't kindle and it rains on washing day,
With greasy pots and pans to scour, and mending mountains high,
I oft forget to touch Your robe as You steal softly by.
On Sundays when I go to church You draw so very near ---
Please help me to remember You when Monday morning's here.

Like Martha in the long ago I labour ceaselessly,
And cumbered with so many tasks I always seem to be.
Grant me a moment, now and then, as fast the hours fleet,
To stop and rest a little while like Mary, at your feet.
A breathing space midst all the jobs I'm hastening to do,
To pause and simply consecrate my bustling life to You.

Then may I hear above the clash, Your quiet voice sublime,
And realise whate'er betide, You're with me all the time.
Draw closer as I make the beds and while the sheets I spread,
I'll lay the pillows softly down to rest Your gentle head;
And every meal I'll try to plan as perfect as can be,
Because I know You're blessing them and sharing them with me.

Each floor must be a shining path for You to set Your feet.,
May sparkling windows welcome You as You pass down the street.
Let every corner of this home glow with Your touch Divine,
Your dedicated dwelling-place, Your sanctuary, Your shrine.
I'll dust the rooms so lovingly and smooth the easy chair,
And then maybe I'll enter to find You seated there.

I've finished now and set a lamp of welcome in the hall,
There's naught to do save listen for Your tender twilight call.
You've Blessed my labours every hour and hallowed all my cares,
Here in the gloaming, Lord, I kneel and offer up my prayers.
I give you thanks for evensong when busy days are through,
'Tis then I linger at your side - Martha and Mary too.

Gems of Truth

GOD AND YOU

"Then Peter opened his mouth and said, of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons" Acts 10:34. No single word or verse in the Bible could be of greater comfort to the average person than the truth found in the foregoing Scripture. The assurance that the Grace of God is extended to all men, regardless of race, colour, condition or ability. The only thing that determines our standing before the Lord God is what we believe.

To all men everywhere God offers pardon from sin, victory over temptation, fellowship with the Holy Spirit, and Everlasting Life on the same universal condition. A just God could do no other way.

If salvation could be had at a price, only the wealthy could attain to it as the price would be high. The poor would be left out of the picture altogether and the world has many more poor than rich. Even the middle class would be unable to attain salvation if it had to be bought.

Then again if class distinction were the means of entering into fellowship with God, very few people would really qualify. Few of earth's millions can trace their ancestry back to kings and queens, or to the honour list of achievement. Since God is no respecter of persons, as the Scripture states no one is rejected, however lowly the standing in the sight of men.

Salvation also leaps across the boundaries of race and colour. There was a time when the Lord Jehovah dealt largely with Israel, but even then it was possible for any Gentile to be a proselyte or adherer to Israel and thus share in her blessings. The result of singling out a nation for special favours was the development of a proud and disobedient people, so far estranged from the God who favoured them that they crucified their Messiah when He came on the scene to fulfill the promises made to them.

This rejection, however, was the door of opening the way of Salvation to all men, so now in this age there is no special class in the family of God. All have equal opportunity to enter as the Word of God offers pardon for sin to repentant men and women in all the universe. The only problem remaining is that many have not even heard of that forgiveness offered to all men. Here the blame lies not with God, but with the Church. This was the vessel the Lord Jesus entrusted the message of Salvation with. How much different is the Church than Israel was?

In Revelation 3:14-18, the message is given to the Church at the close of the Church age that all is not well in their attitudes and actions. How much of world conditions of our day and age can be attributed to this state of affairs in professing Christendom will some day be unveiled. The call of the hour is to remember that the Lord and Head of the Church has left the spreading abroad of the true way of Salvation to His servants on earth. In all sincerity one may ask, "What have we done about it?" Luke 16: 1-13.

Hall's Lake news

Beautiful weather continues. Rain would be welcome to help the fire hazards.

The Dave MacLennan's have arrived for their month at the Morrow cottage.

Highway 35 construction between Minden and Carnarvon is still pending. May 26th has long since come and gone and roads everywhere else are being repaired, but Highway 35 north of Minden gets left.

Long grass at the roadside and dust-layers in areas where a lot of traffic stops and starts would be a welcome service in these summer months. In the Winter the Highways are well maintained and in the Summer certain duties should be automatically looked after without the tax payers having to plead or ask for any special concessions. Dry weather with sand and dust blowing need a water or oil truck on the roads, or calcium. Our hats are off to the men who toil on the roads but please don't forget Highway 35 North of

Mr and Mrs James Wilson who purchased the Ellis' cottage last year, have been up with their children Jim and Susan.

Fifteen people attended early Communion at St. Stephen's Sunday morning at 8:30. The Rev. Stanley B. Hills is taking the service during the month of July. He is the Rector of St. Augustine of Canterbury in Hamilton.

Mrs Roy Clark's sister and daughter Doris have been visiting from Edmonton, Alberta. Doris is staying on with the Montgomery family while her Mother visits in Toronto.

The Don Hall's have a lovely big cabin cruiser which looks beautiful gliding across the Lake at night.

Miss Rosemary Sinson is visiting her parents for a few days.

Mr and Mrs Christopher Stott of Hamilton and Burk's Falls visited with Len and Doreen Stinson last week.

Everyone reports how warm and lovely Hall's Lake water is this year, even late at night. Lots of swimming and boating.

Mrs Thilde Nevitt, Convenor, and the Summer Exhibition Committee, wishes to thank all the helpers who gave so generously of their time in setting up, staffing, and taking down the Exhibits.

To all the Exhibitors, to the County School Boards Teachers, and all who had a part in making the 1975 Summer Exhibition and Sale, the success that it was, a sincere Thank You.

Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts, Mrs Peggy Fawns, Publicity.

Thank-You

We would like to thank all our many friends, neighbours and also family for their help, calls and visits during the three weeks that Max was at home after his accident. Many thanks again and may God Bless all of you. Max, Roberta Walsh and girls.
